

Summary of the 2007-2008 Annual Progress Report on Assessment of Student Learning

Student outcomes for General Human Ecology programs were assessed based on measures that included 1) a national licensure examination and 2) piloting a new foundation class and a new capstone course. Students exceeded national averages on the PRAXIS examination. Qualitative data the pilot foundation and capstone classes were used to revise the syllabus, learning experience and evaluation measures. The new classes will be formally offered beginning in 2009-2010.
